

THE TOUCH

The Touch, a contemporary single title romance, received 5 star reviews in the Readers' Favorite Book Reviews & Awards Contest.

The story revolves around a friendship since childhood between Beth, Judith and Karen, strong career women who won't settle. They don't need men to complete them, but they each hope to find that special man who will unleash the passion within them. In spite of the odds, Beth still believes that knights in shining armor exist. The challenging part is sifting through the chaff to find the wheat. When she unexpectedly meets San Francisco radio personality Ray Griffin, she thinks he might be the one. He is charming, considerate, and sensitive. And they have chemistry, which heats up their relationship with sensuously explicit situations. But Beth soon discovers that even though Ray may be a knight, his armor is tarnished. He continues to suffer from the tragic demise of his fiancée. Torn by the guilt of falling in love again, he also fears the possibility of losing someone else who he loves to Death. Ray isn't sure that he is ready to give his heart to another woman, even someone as special as Beth.

Contest reader comments include the following:

"...thought-provoking...full of humor and sadness...refreshing...fully dimensional story that will appeal to romance and women's fiction readers." "...excellent job of writing vivid and interesting characters...I found myself laughing out loud in spots...very nice contrast to some of the sadder elements in the story..." "Amazingly written characters...Part humor, part sadness, and part sensual story, the author weaves all of the parts together to create a wonderful story about love and friendship..." "...enough sizzle in the romance to keep me excited...not too much that it got bogged down with the details...amazingly written...very real and authentic."
